TESTIMONIALS

Jennifer Sotto - Philippines

I have always been the "quiet girl" in class. Moving to a different country and going to a new school – EGGS, was an overwhelming experience for me. Everything was completely new, the culture, education system, environment and the fact that I am in a place away from home and my family. At EGGS, the teachers and staff are very supportive, approachable and 'hands on' which helped me cope and slowly adjust. EGGS has a vast variety of cultures. I like how everyone, regardless of cultural background, is respected and valued which I think is one of the many reasons why EGGS has a bully-free environment. The school has a lot of facilities which helped me discover my interests and potential. Despite the academic work load, different committees and groups at school organize fun events that empower me as a young woman, and encourage me to learn and have fun at the same time.

Giulia M. Pilia - Italy

There is something about the close relationship between students and teachers that is comforting here but more than that, what I have loved is students being able to choose their subjects, means that every person in the class is interested in what they are learning. However, above everything else what I find incredible is the sense of pride that came with attending this school. I have only been here two months but from day two I felt like I had my place, and that is incredibly special.

Another great element about EGGS, is the girls; going to an all-girls school has practically changed my life beyond all my expectations, they have made me feel so welcome and included that I now feel like I have known them all my life. Moreover, that is what EGGS does to you; it makes you think about why you have not been there all your life.
